A Tribute to Gram Parsons

As a singer and songwriter, Gram Parsons stood at the nexus of countless musical crossroads, and he sold his soul to the devil at every one. Parsons hung out with glamorous women and the coolest of the Rolling Stones beyond the blues in their appreciation of American roots music, and found his musical soul mate in Harris.

He led the Byrds to create the seminal country rock masterpiece Sweetheart of the Rodeo. He formed the Flying Burrito Brothers, helped to guide the Rolling Stones beyond the blues in their appreciation of American roots music, and found his musical soul mate in Harris.

Join author David N. Meyer on Friday, November 30 at 7:30 p.m. for a discussion of his book Twenty Thousand Roads: The Ballad of Gram Parsons and His Cosmic American Music (Random House, November 2007). Meyer’s discussion will be musically illustrated with a live performances by The Grieving Angels.

Gram Parsons’ solo albums, GP and Grievous Angel, are now recognized as visionary masterpieces of the transcendental jambalaya of rock, soul, country, gospel, and blues Parsons named “Cosmic American Music.”

Four months before Grievous Angel was released, Parsons died of a drug and alcohol overdose at age 26. He lived fast, died young, and left a beautiful corpse — a corpse his friends stole, took to Joshua Tree National Monument, and set afire in its coffin. The theft and burning of his body marked the end of Parsons’ life and the beginning of the Parsons legend.

Friends welcomes author Lucette Lagnado

The Friends of the Library welcomes Lucette Lagnado, author of Cairo to the New World, to the New World of Friends welcomes author Lucette Lagnado, author of The Man in the White Sharkskin Suit: My Family’s Exodus from Old Cairo to the New World (Ecco 2007), on Thursday, November 29 at 7:30 p.m.

In December 1963, Ms. Lagnado and her family arrived on a frozen pier in New York City, in debt, destitute and without any family to greet them. In her poignant and heartbreaking memoir, award-winning Wall Street Journal reporter Lagnado recounts how her once prosperous family lost everything including their identity when they fled her father’s besieged Cairo.

From the Lagnado’s elegant apartment overlooking one of Cairo’s grand boulevards to a cramped one bedroom in Brooklyn, The Man in the White Sharkskin Suit is a moving riches-to-rags story of loss, identity, faith, tradition and triumph that has been hailed as a “crushing, brilliant book.”

Ms. Lagnado is the coauthor of Children of the Flames: Dr. Mengele and the Untold Story of the Twins of Auschwitz, which has been translated into nearly a dozen languages. She is senior special writer and investigative reporter for the Journal. She and her husband, Douglas Feiden, reside in Sag Harbor and New York City. After her talk, Ms. Lagnado will sign copies of her book. Refreshments will be served.

Freelance photographer Robin Appel traveled the world extensively, taking pictures long before she went professional. Her love for travel and photographing people, especially children, led her to pursue a degree in photography. Ms. Appel’s Eyes and the World series will hang in the Photography Gallery November 5 through December 30. She writes, “As I was going through the selection process for this show, I realized that consistently in my photographs I was attracted to the eyes of my subjects. I hope that as you view these photographs you see a parallel portrayal between the emotions and characteristics of the people and their environments, and that this exhibit gives you a better understanding about of the lives of citizens around the world.” Ms. Appel and her family have traveled to six continents and have begun plans to travel to the seventh. Meet the artist at a reception on Saturday, November 17 at 2 p.m.
FOL Sets 2007-8 Goals, Programs

The Friends of the Library has begun its 2007-08 fundraising campaign, and asks for community support as it continues “to polish the jewel that is the Port Washington Public Library,” in the words of Amy G. Bass, FOL president.

The Friends conducts its fundraising through an annual appeal letter — check your mailbox or pick up a donation envelope in the library. Help the FOL fulfill its 2007-08 goals, which include:

- Funding library programming in all departments including special multicultural events such as the Latino and Asian Festivals, and collaborative programs with Port schools;
- Serving as sole sponsor of the library’s popular museum pass program, which offers free admission to the Metropolitan Museum of Art, the American Museum of Natural History and the Long Island Children’s Museum, among other institutions;
- Continuing as the primary supporter of the library’s on-line initiatives, including offering live homework help for grades 4-12 via the library website (www.pwpl.org);
- Organizing community outreach events, including its signature event — the annual Book and Author Luncheon — and Friends & Family Day (see story in this issue).

FOL is dedicated to strengthening the ties between our library and community, and to advancing the library’s mission as a center for lifelong learning, information and culture. The FOL supports the library through volunteerism, programming, fundraising, outreach and advocacy. To contact the Friends call 883-4400 Ext. 101, or e-mail fol@pwpl.org. Be sure to visit www.pwpl.org/fol for updates.

In memoriam

Longtime Port resident and community leader, Henry Salomon, died at age 95 on July 25.

Henry left his mark on numerous institutions in and around Port Washington, and is probably best known for his years of service to the library. A plaque in the lobby names Henry as the second recipient of the Friends of the Library (FOL) Award “To honor outstanding and inspired service to the Port Washington Library.”

Henry’s involvement with the library began when he served on the Art Advisory Council in the Bellview Avenue building. He soon joined a group of devotees who thought Port needed a new and larger library, and he helped found the Friends of the Library to raise the needed funds. After the new library was completed, Henry ran for the library’s board of trustees and won in a landslide election. He took pride in the fact that under his tenure the library broadened its scope of services and programs, and reported that the board accomplished all that it did without voting once. His experience of building consensus decisions on the board made him realize that even if he had a strong opinion, “Some one else may have just as strong an opinion and that, in fact, they might be more right than I am.”

The Salomon family requests that donations be made in Henry’s name to the Friends of the Library.
Meet author William Low

Old Penn Station

In an introductory note to his book Old Penn Station, William Low explains that when he selected New York's original Pennsylvania Station as the subject of his master's thesis, he embarked on a journey to bring the landmark "back to life." Here he does so gracefully, through direct yet lyrical prose and dark paintings that range from close-up images to expansive panoramas, and from gritty to sharply focused. William Low visits on Friday, November 30 at 12:10 p.m.

Outlining the history of the station, Low notes that the then-powerful Pennsylvania Railroad Company was determined to drop its New York-bound passengers in Manhattan, rather than have them take a ferry to the island from New Jersey. And, they "wanted to do it with style."

After a renowned architectural firm and boss sculptor were hired, a tunnel was built under the Hudson River and the palace-like structure was opened in 1930. Low's narrative and artistic readers into the station's bustling concourse, where they will appreciate how for travelers of the era, the terminal "was a magical experience." That, of course, makes the depiction of the grand station's 1963 demolition all the sadder. Yet Low concludes on a heartening note, observing that public outrage at Penn Station's razing led to the founding of the New York City Landmarks Preservation Commission, which has saved other historic buildings — including Grand Central Terminal — from a similar fate.

William Low was born and raised in New York City. He is a lover of trains and New York architecture and a four-time Silver Medal winner at the Society of Illustrators. He teaches at the Fashion Institute of Technology in New York and resides with his family in Huntington. For those of our patrons who remember the glory that was Old Penn Station, and would like to share it with their children and grandchildren, Mr. Low will follow his slide-illustrated discussion of his book with a signing. Books will be available courtesy of the Friends of the Library.

Friends and Family Day

The Friends of the Library hosts its second annual Friends & Family Day on Saturday, November 3. Friends & Family Day showcases the library as a friendly meeting place for patrons of all ages. All events are free and at the library.

11 a.m.: The day begins with Port Washington's favorite vaudevillian silent clown Chip Bryant performing "Listening with Your Eyes." His hilarious interactive show for children. Children must be accompanied by an adult.

Noon to 4 p.m.: Join the Friends for their first-ever paperback book exchange. Bring your adult, teen and children's paperback books — good condition only! — upstairs to the Hagedorn Room for a book swap. Please: no hardcovers and no more than 20 books per person. Books not accepted outside or in lobby.

WAY OFF BROADWAY

Friday, November 16 at 7:30 p.m.

Deanna Kirk Trio performs a sultry interpretation of hits from "The Great American Songbook." Cole Porter, Gershwin, Rogers and Hart, as well as European composers such as Michel LeGrand are all part of Ms. Kirk's impressive repertoire.

SoundSwap welcomes Tony d’Mattia

On Thursday, November 15 at 7:30 p.m., SoundSwap event featuring singer/songwriter/multi-instrumentalist Tony d'Mattia — a performer known by his ever-growing legion of fans as, simply, 'fiz'.

Born and raised in New York, d'Mattia has been performing a refreshing interpretation of pop/rock for over a decade. As a full-time musician, Tony is constantly writing and recording new material — efforts that have honed him into a fine songwriter and an exciting live performer. 'fiz' enjoys and adapts to any environment he is thrust into, and says "I love playing for a crowd, making them happy, whether there are a couple of hundred people there or no one, I always give it my all." Growing up listening to the Beatles, Led Zeppelin, Marvin Gaye and other legendary artists has given Tony strong, grounded roots in rock and roll, along with the freedom to explore. “I write what I’m feeling at the moment,” he says. “Sometimes we’re sad, sometimes we’re not — and so I can never understand why some bands out there only write dark, angry songs all the time. I’m not afraid to write very different sounding tunes . . . the Beatles did.”

‘fiz’ sends listeners on a soaring rollercoaster ride of life’s ups and downs on the two albums already under his belt (the critically acclaimed Transcending and Right Where You Are), as well as on his upcoming CD release. His live performances are a cause for both celebration and reflection. Learn more about ‘fiz’ at his website www.fizband.com.
Welcome to the page for Children’s Services. Be sure to look here for upcoming exhibits, programs and articles relating to Children’s Services and the Parenting Information Center. Parents: Please comply with the age guidelines for these programs and be prepared to show proof of local residency.

New Books in TeenSpace
Check out our great graphic novels for teens! Some of our recommended titles include:

Buddha Volume 1 Kapilavastu by Osamu Tezuka. A story about the biography of Siddhartha, Gautama Buddha, the founder of Buddhism. (Graphic YA B Gautama Buddha)

Dead High Yearbook by Ivan Velez Eight intertwining tales about teenagers from the same school who die horrible deaths and come to rest somewhere between life and death. (Graphic YA FIC Velez)

Blindsight by Kevin C. Pyle. Dean and his friends have created an entire world in the woods behind their suburban housing development. In their army fantasy, they’re at war, and Dean is the captain leading his troops through intrigue and danger. A run-in with a homeless man snaps the boys back to reality, and drives them apart. (Graphic YA FIC Pyle)

Civil War: A Marvel Comics Event. In the wake of a tragedy, Capitol Hill proposes the Super Hero Registration Act, requiring all costumed heroes to unmask themselves before the government. The landscape of the Marvel Universe is changing, and it’s time to choose: Whose side are you on? (Graphic A FIC Civil)

Houdini: the Handcuff King by Jason Lutes and Nick Bertozzi. In this account of one of Houdini’s most famous tricks, the master magician is handcuffed by the Boston Police Department before jumping into the chilly Charles River in 1908. (Graphic YA B Houdini I)

Laika by Nick Abadzis. Laika was the abandoned puppy who grew up to become Earth’s first space traveler. This is her story. A wonderful illustrated tale charts her story that culminates with her historic space mission. (Graphic YA FIC Abadzis)

Maus by Art Spiegelman. Spiegelman, a survivor of the Holocaust, tells the story of his father’s life as a Polish Jew living through World War II to his own coming of age in America. (Graphic A FIC Maus)

Mouse Guard: Fall 1152 by David Petersen. In the world of Mouse Guard, mice struggle to live safely and prosper amongst harsh conditions and a host of predators. Three Guardsmen are dispatched to find a missing merchant mouse that never arrived at his destination. Their search reveals much more than they expect. (Graphic YA FIC Petersen)

Stuck in the Middle: Seventeen Comics from an Unpleasant Age edited by Ariel Schrag. This anthology of illustrated tales about the agonies and triumphs of seventh and eighth grade features some of America’s leading graphic novelists, including Daniel Clowes, Joe Matt, Lauren Weinstein, and Ariel Schrag. With a sense of humor as refreshing as it is bitingly honest, seventeen artists share their stories of first love, bullying, zits, and all the things that make middle school the worst years of our lives. (Graphic YA FIC Stuck)
