

Major gift names the Reading Room for Joan & Arnold Saltzman

Arnold and Joan Saltzman will be recognized at a reception on Thursday, October 25 for their generous gift of $300,000 to the Port Washington Library Foundation. The library's Reading Room will be named in their honor.

Ambassador Arnold A. Saltzman has served five American presidents in a wide range of policy-level diplomatic and economic assignments. He received a Presidential Commendation for his efforts on the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty, and has carried out diplomatic assignments in the former Czechoslovakia, the former Soviet Union, South America, Central America and Austria. He has served the government in the Office of Price Stabilization, Procurement Policy Board, Office of Economic Opportunity, and Agency for International Development, and he was the Chairman of the Federal Blue Ribbon Commission on National Growth and Development.

Ambassador Saltzman was also Advisor to the New York State Congressional Delegation in Washington and Chairman of the Speakers Committee of the Assembly in Albany. He is currently an advisor to presidents of republics of the former Soviet Union.

Ambassador Saltzman is Chairman of Windsor Production Corporation, retired CEO of Vista Resources, and a director in a number of charitable corporations. Among numerous non-profit activities, he has served as President of the National Committee on American Foreign Policy, Chairman of the Columbia College Board of Overseers and Columbia College Fund, and a member of Columbia University's School of International and Public Affairs Board of Advisors. Ambassador Saltzman is a graduate of Columbia College, has received the Columbia University Medal, and holds honorary doctorates from Hofstra and Adelphi Universities. He also received the Order of Honor, the Republic of Georgia's most prestigious decoration.

He is on the Board of Hofstra University, Chairman of the Board of Hofstra Honors College; on the Board of North Shore University Hospital and Maimonides Hospital; Founding President of Nassau County Museum of Art and on the Board of the Baltimore Museum of Art. The Institute for War and Peace Studies, founded under the sponsorship of Dwight D. Eisenhower in 1951 during his tenure as president of Columbia University, was renamed for Ambassador Arnold Saltzman in 2003.

Joan Saltzman is the embodiment of inspiring leadership, civic responsibility and generous philanthropy. As an advocate and activist, she has shown rare courage and commitment in working to protect Long Island's and New York State's most vulnerable residents, combating discriminatory policies and practices, and strengthening and expanding health and human services.

A graduate of Barnard College, Ms. Saltzman has had a significant impact on health and mental health services, laying the foundation for citizen involvement and equal access by persons of differing ages, races, backgrounds and abilities to improved resources, including safe, supportive and affordable housing.

On the state level, between 1973 and 1985, Ms. Saltzman served as a member of key state policy and planning bodies, including the New York State Health Coordinating Council; the New York State Office of Mental Hygiene Planning Council and its Advisory Council on Alcohol (appointed to both by Governor Carey); as Chairperson of the Special Housing Task Force of the Office of Mental Hygiene Council on Citizen

Participation; and as Co-Chair of the New York State Special Mental Health Committee of the Task Force for the Development of Community Residential and Rehabilitation Programs. On the local level, from 1968-72, she served as Planning Chair of the Nassau County Mental Health Board (appointed by the County Executive).

In 1960, Ms. Saltzman helped found the North Shore Child & Family Guidance Association, a highly regarded community-based mental health provider, serving as a board member for many years and also as its president. In 1972, she co-founded Community Advocates, a non-profit organization that has been a major catalyst for social and racial justice, affordable housing and housing for homeless individuals and families on Long Island. She served as president of Community Advocates for 14 eventful years and still serves on its board and executive committee. She was a founder of the Long Island Community Foundation in 1978, serving on its board and grants committee for more than 30 years, and also a founder of the Long Island Fund for Women and Girls (recently renamed the Long Island Women's Fund).

Ms. Saltzman became a well-known expert in the development of apartments and group homes within the community for persons leaving psychiatric institutions and persons with emotional and developmental disabilities. Starting in the early 1980s, she founded Long Island's first residence for children with autism and related disabilities, and then founded residences for teens and for adults with special needs.

Ms. Saltzman and her husband, Ambassador Arnold A. Saltzman, have shared a lifelong dedication to helping people in need. In 1991, through their vision and generosity, a new facility was built on the Hofstra University campus to house child development and outreach programs for families and children from Hempstead and surrounding communities. In recognition of their support of Hofstra and their commitment to human services, the University named the facility the Joan and Arnold Saltzman Community Services Center. Ms. Saltzman is currently chair of the Center's board.

Ms. Saltzman has been the recipient of numerous awards for her social justice advocacy, community activism and humanitarian service.

We thank the Saltzman Foundation for designating the Port Washington Library Foundation as a recipient of this gift acknowledging the library's role in helping community members who are most in need to meet their life goals.

If you would like to make a gift in the Saltzmans' honor to further the work of the Port Washington Public Library, please go to pwpl.org/foundation or call 516-883-4400, Ext 101.

Movies from Belgium

This month we screen Romantics Anonymous, a comedy from Belgium. Here are some other films from France's Northeast neighbor in our circulating DVD collection:

Ben X (2007). Affected by a mild form of autism, teenager Ben (Greg Timmermans) is ignored by his teachers and tormented by his classmates, but he is a courageous hero in the computer gaming world that consumes him. Director Nic Balthazar also scripted, from his novel.

Eldorado (2008). Writer/director Bouli Lanners depicts the friendship between two loners, vintage car dealer Yvan (played by Lanners) and a young burglar named Elie (Fabrice Adde).

L'Enfant (The Child) (2005). Petty thief Bruno (Jérémie Renier) is so nonplused to learn that his girlfriend Sonia (Déborah François) has given birth to their baby, he takes the opportunity to sell the child to a black market adoption agency. Brothers Jean-Pierre and Luc Dardenne scripted and directed this heart-breaking tale of one young man's search for redemption.

Hop (2002) by Dominique Standaert. All Justin and his father want to do is enjoy a soccer game together. This sparks a chain of events which leads to the father's deportation, and Justin finds himself alone and on the run.

L'Iceberg (The Iceberg) (2005). A near-fatal incident with a walk-in freezer causes fast-food restaurant manager Fiona to become obsessed with refrigeration. Fiona Gordon (who plays Fiona) directed and scripted with Dominique Abel (who plays Julien) and Bruno Romy (who plays Georges).

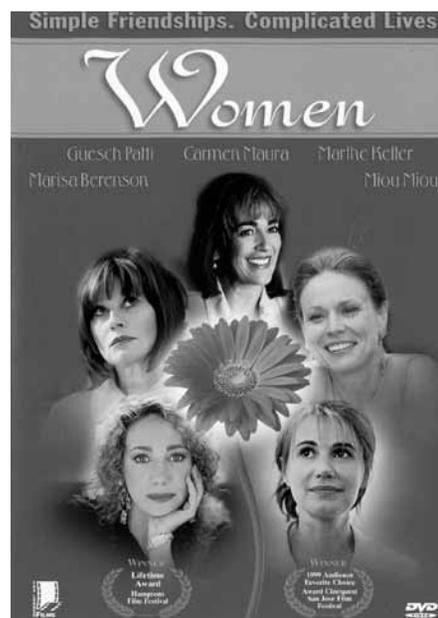

Ma Vie en Rose (My Life in Pink) (1997). Suburban parents (Michele Laroque, Jean-Philippe) are put to the test when their young son (Georges Du Fresne) announces that he wants to be a little girl. Alain Berliner directed.

Private Property (Nué Propriété) (2006). Divorcee Pascale (Isabelle Huppert) dreams of opening a B&B with her new lover, but she cannot escape the shadow of her ex-husband and her two selfish sons. Director Joachim Lafosse scripted with François Pirot.

Les Rendez-vous d'Anna (Anna's Rendez-Vous) (1978) by Chantal Akerman. An alienated filmmaker (Aurore Clément) journeys through Germany, Belgium and France, meeting friends, relations, lovers and strangers.

A Town Called Panic (Panique au Village) (2009). Cowboy and Indian's plan to surprise their pal Horse with a homemade barbecue pit goes awry when the fifty million bricks that they accidentally ordered online show up on their doorstep. Stephane Aubier and Vincent Patar scripted and directed this animated feature; Aubier voices Cowboy and Patar voices Horse.

Women (Elles) (1997) by Luis Galvao Teles. Carmen Maura, Miou Miou, Marisa Berenson, Guesch Patti and Marthe Keller face love and loss in this Belgian/Portuguese co-production.

Songwriter visits PWPL

Although he has had great success in Europe, songwriter Tom Pacheco is virtually unknown in America. His songs are frequently brilliant, and have been covered by countless folk and country artists. He has also shared the stage with many legends of the rock and folk era. Join us on August 24 at 7:30 p.m. when the singer songwriter visits SoundSwap.

Pacheco was born in 1946 in New Bedford, Massachusetts, the son of jazz guitarist Tony Pacheco. He took up his father's instrument by the time he was ten years old, and by the time he turned 19, he had released a solo album of original material, Turn Away from the Storm. He formed a psychedelic folk-rock group called the Ragamuffins, releasing a couple of singles before joining with Sharon Alexander in the group Euphoria, whose self-titled album was released in 1969. The duo followed up with Pacheco & Alexander in 1971 on CBS Records. Following the break-up of the duo, Tom signed with RCA, and teamed up with legendary producer George "Shadow" Morton for two solo records, Swallowed Up in the Great American Heart and The Outsider, both of which were released in 1976.

Pacheco moved to Woodstock, NY in 1978, where he formed a band for local gigs called The Hellhounds. He relocated briefly to Austin, TX in 1981, but returned to Woodstock – and the reunited Hellhounds – in 1983. Always the gypsy, Pacheco moved to Nashville in 1986, then to Dublin, which was to be his base in Europe for the next decade. From here, Tom released several critically acclaimed albums, including Eagle in the Rain (1989), Sunflowers & Scarecrows (1991), Tales from the Red Lake (1992), a duet album with Norwegian singer Steinar Albrigtsen called Big Storm Comin' (1993), and Luck of the Angels (1994). Pacheco returned to Woodstock in 1997, recording what is arguably his finest album, Woodstock Winter, with producer and Band guitarist Jim Weider. The album was tracked at Levon Helm's studio and featured guest shots by several members of The Band, including Helm and Rick Danko. Although critically lauded, Pacheco remained a cult musician in the States. He continued to release albums in Europe, including an acoustic set called Bare Bones and Barbed Wire (1998), the appropriately titled The Lost American Songwriter (1999), again produced by Weider, and a second collaboration with Steinar Albrigtsen, Nobodies (2000). In 2002, Appleseed Recordings released There Was a Time, and two more albums followed in 2004, Long Walk and a third Weider-produced set, Year of the Big. Sharing an evening with Tom Pacheco, listeners experience a voice and vision as timelessly American (and at times as political) as Woody Guthrie.

The evening will open with a performance by local singer/songwriter, and long-time Port Washington resident, Barry Waller. This program is sponsored by the Friends of the Library.

Rock Paper Scissors

Rock Paper Scissors formed when Iowans Miranda Mallard, Darla Murphy and Gemma Cohen realized that harmonizing was their collective fate. The trio credits a wide range of influences for their unique selection of cover material, and for the depth and breadth of their original compositions — listeners will detect traces of everything from the Andrew Sisters to the Roches to traditional folk to medieval mass during their performance.

"Music is how we give back to the world and all of its inhabitants," says Mallard. The library is delighted to have Rock Paper Scissors visit us on Monday, August 13 at 7:30 p.m. on their first East coast tour, coinciding with the release of their "Live from Iowa" EP on Little Red Hat Records.

The evening will open with a short performance by a local singer-songwriter. This program is sponsored by the Friends of the Library.

Five Fridays in August

Art Sandwiched In

Our Friday Sandwiched In programs this month all focus on art. On August 3, join us for Heckscher Museum of Art docent Dorothy Cappadonna's lecture on the Long Island Biennial, a juried exhibition featuring work by artists and filmmakers of Nassau and Suffolk Counties.

The New American Collection at the Met is Vivian Gordon's topic on August 10. This illustrated talk will provide an introduction to the history of American painting, from early colonial portraits through 20th century works.

On August 17, art historian Elizabeth Kahn Kaplan presents an illustrated lecture on the iconic painting Washington Crossing the Delaware. Restored to its original glory after three years of conservation and cleaning, it was revealed to the public last January at The Metropolitan Museum of Art in a re-creation of the original frame in which it was first displayed more than 150 years ago.

Join Evelyn Silver, docent at the Nassau County Museum, for an illustrated presentation Children Having Fun as Seen by Major Artists on Friday, August 24.

Dorothy Cappadonna makes a return visit on August 31 for Absorbed by Color: Art in the 20th Century. With the tendency towards abstraction in the early 20th century, artists began an exploration of color for its own sake. Ms. Cappadonna presents an overview of the exhibit, which continues at The Heckscher Museum through December 2.

All programs begin at 12:10 p.m.

Live at PWPL: Just Sixties

Dig out your tie-dye tees and bell-bottom jeans and rediscover the psychedelic era with this high-energy group on Friday, August 17 at 7:30 p.m.

In the Community Gallery

The Golden Age of TV Comedy

In conjunction with the Port Summer Show's production of "My Favorite Year," the library exhibits a collection of producer Bob Waldman's memorabilia from the golden age of TV comedy. The exhibit will hang in the Community Gallery throughout August.

Among the items exhibited will be behind-the-scenes photos from "I Love Lucy," "Texaco Star Theatre," "Your Show of Shows," "Caesar's Hour" and "The Martha Raye Show." Also featured will be scripts, TV Guides, show tickets (including a copy of a ticket for the very first "Texaco Star Theatre" hosted by Milton Berle) and the now-rare printed programs that were handed out to studio audiences who attended these shows.
